

Dundas & Wilson Take Action and Announce Support of Children's Charity

7 May 2010

Law firm Dundas & Wilson has a packed calendar of fun, firm wide fundraising events planned after announcing its new charity partner, Action for Children.

Dundas & Wilson has pledged to raise funds for Action for Children, which helps and guides the most vulnerable and neglected children and young people in the UK to reach their full potential.

Celebratory launch events will be held in each Dundas & Wilson office - London, Edinburgh and Glasgow - with fundraising activities for employees, clients and volunteers, throughout the UK, in the coming months.

Emily Catterwell, corporate social responsibility officer at Dundas & Wilson, said: "Too many young people have had a difficult start to their lives and need support. Action for Children plays a crucial role in aiding the development of those disadvantaged children and we are extremely glad to help.

"We've lots of our own fun activities planned but we're also really looking forward to getting involved with Action for Children's own projects and helping young people directly, including things like an arts weekend and by helping with a makeover of the charity's facilities and garden."

Dundas & Wilson employees will have the chance to take part in events planned for the year including a sports dinner, football tournaments at West Ham's Upton Park in London and Celtic's training centre in Glasgow, a Father's Day parachute jump, fun runs across the UK and a bingo event to name but a few.

Grant McFarlane, corporate & major donor fundraising manager at Action for Children, said: "We are very grateful to everyone at Dundas & Wilson for their support. This contribution allows us to build on our success in helping over 150,000 people living in tough circumstances.

"The money raised will go towards supporting children, young people and parents who have been affected by a number of issues including poverty, disability, abuse or neglect."

Donald Shaw, managing partner of Dundas & Wilson, said: "As a company we are committed to assisting worthy causes so it is with great delight that we can announce Action for Children as our chosen charity partner for the year. The charity does an amazing job and it gives us much pleasure to help contribute to its continued success."
